PARCEL Delivers a Seamless Reporting Workflow for Engineering and Environmental Consulting Firm Gilmore & Associates, Inc.

Professional Geologist/Environmental Services Manager Toby Kessler and Project Geologist Chris Freer, P.G. explain why their full-service engineering and environmental consulting firm has relied on PARCEL for 11+ years.

Effortlessly Create High-Quality Reporting

Prior to using PARCEL, G&A created reports using Microsoft Word, which made it difficult to regularly produce error-free reports.

“With PARCEL we have better quality reports that consistently look good, and give us good results,” Kessler says.

“It previously took more effort to meet ASTM standards for Phase I’s, and it’s important to meet those standards for liability protection,” Kessler explains. “For example, when you edit a report by cutting and pasting, something could be missing. We don’t have that problem now that we use PARCEL.”

Effective Remote Team Collaboration

PARCEL makes it easy for teams to work remotely — everyone works off with the same information and has access to the reporting tools they need.

“The accessibility of PARCEL being web-based really helps us. Our team can access reports anytime, anywhere, which is important now with so much work being done remotely,” Freer explains.

Deliver What Your Clients Needs

PARCEL helps position G&A favorably among its clients.

“We seamlessly work with reports, and everything is consistent using PARCEL,” says Kessler. “This allows us to serve our clients well, whether they ask for a Phase I, or other scopes of work.”
